President to Give Report On Conference

WASHINGTON—President Truman will report to the nation on the Big Three Berlin conference tomorrow (Thursday) night at 10 o'clock (EST).

The White House said the address would be broadcast on all radio networks.

President-elect Charles G. Donahue said Mr. Truman would make a 20-minute address, in which he would give greater detail about the historic Potsdam conference than was related in last week's official press conference.

One of Mr. Truman's first appointments, today, was to appear in the White House since his return from Europe—was Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. Stimson said they were to discuss the Potsdam conference and the Japanese atomic bomb.

The president's first press conference following the Berlin meeting will be held at 10 o'clock, probably Monday or Tuesday, Stimson said.

He said he would report to the people as a whole first, the press secretary explained.

The president reduced his appointments for today and tomorrow to a minimum.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH would go into "greater detail" than the conference, Stimson said.

Asked if this would include mention of the Pacific war, which was virtually unsolved by Potsdam conference, Stimson said he didn't want to predict on that question.

Stimson also would not comment on reports that the president had decided to take personal charge of atomic bombing of Japan if additional use of the devastating weapon is necessary, or that a new "surrender-or-else" ultimatum would be handed to the Japanese.

There was sharp speculation that the president might take occasion to use special radio to Japanese again, that they must surrender now or see the future of their country under the rule of the atom.

The development of the atomic bomb has left the country and the world with mixed feelings over what the future holds. Many people will be listening to the President for further word on steps taken to control the production and use of atomic power said this by Stimson, make recommendations himself on its employment.

Flushing Man Drowned in River

Arthur Davy, 43, of Flushing, Mich., drowned this morning about 10 o'clock in Thursday Bay river near West's street.

Davy said his son Arthur J., 17, was in a new boat which was being towed by another scowper, by City Steward and Paul R. Shaw.

Davy, who could not swim, was in a small chair in the back of the boat during the race when the boat suddenly stopped and he fell into the river. He went down at once.

The boat was recovered about noon by Sheriff Fred W. Wilson and Constable Officer William C. Davis. It was taken to the Flushing station.

Davy's wife has two sons and a daughter.

The party came to Alpena a few days ago on a fishing trip.

PAUL PINKERTON

PRESIDENT OF EAGLES—Paul Pinkerton, youngest president of the American Legion, today was elected president of the American Legion at the meeting Tuesday night, at which Jack Sullivan was elected vice-president. Pinkerton advanced to the presidency when Edward Gunkle resigned. Other officers are Fred E. Lawrence, treasurer, and William C. Conner, secretary.

Gayle Boynton Killed in Pacific

Flight Officer Gayle Boynton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edson Boynton, 113 E. Clark was killed in the Pacific July 29 according to word received today from the War Department.

Major Bong was brought back to Boyhood Home.

SUPERIOR WIS.—The greatest air war this country ever had came today to stay.

An army transport plane brought the body of Maj. Richard L. Bong in a flag-draped casket back to the shore of Sky-blue Lake Superior where he was reamed the woods as a boy. Bong, 21, became the nation's top flying ace by shooting down 40 Japanese planes. He was killed Monday in his crash landing in the Pacific.

A SILENT CROWD of about a hundred persons watched the body glide onto the runway at the airport in Duluth, Minn., adjacent to Superior. There were military dignitaries from Washington, young men who went to school with the war hero, and the plain folks from nearby Poplar where Bong grew up on a farm.

The Rev. Arvid Horne will officiate at funeral services at 3 p.m. in the Concordia Lutheran church. Among him will be the Rev. Paul B. who married Bong and his college sweetheart in the same church last Feb. 10.

GRAVE-DIGGING SERVICES and burial will be of the Poplar cemetery on the outskirts of the little village of 400 where Bong and his family lived. Bong's father, who milked the cows and took his first flight from Poplar is only 18 miles from.

Bong's widow, the former Marjorie, a personal friend, Mrs. Clarence T. and an escort of eight army officers.

I want ride to Detroit Saturday, 514 Superior.

Army Plans to Land on Japan Mainland

WASHINGTON—The U. S. army still plans to land on the shores of Japan—effort with occupational troops or with full-scale invasion force, depending on what the atomic bomb does to the Japanese will and power to so on fighting.

For the army to plan any other way, high officials believed today, would be to take the uncalculated risks in the atomic bomb it has, the deadliest weapon ever made, but it is just one weapon.

FOR THAT REASON, the War Department has no intention—despite scattered congressional criticism—of sending the army below the 38,000,000 men and women which has felt all along as essential to the conquest of Japan.

Forty-eight hours after the historic day of the atomic age, officials felt soberly constrained to point out that the army has yet to reach its zenith. The new bomb certainly should shorten the Japanese war, they felt, but the only way it can end the conflict abruptly is for the Japanese themselves to decide to stop.

This, some observers believed, they will do. The army will do before the full fury of atomic bomb assault is unleashed against them. Certain the army is ready with plenty of the new bombs.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN, now back from Germany, had come home to be considering a second ultimatum following up the surrender of the Japanese. The ultimatum issued from Potsdam July 26, or it may just take the form of more atomic bombs.

On Monday he reminded the Japanese of the Potsdam ultimatum and invited them, in the light of what the atomic bomb did to Hiroshima, to reconsider their ultimatum.

The alternative, he said, will be the ruin of destruction which has never been seen on earth.

But fantastic as this destruction may be, the army had discounted it last week when Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson let it be known that the 7,000,000-man army figure still might be used.

Understandably, officials felt, many persons may have jumped to the conclusion that the atomic bomb would make it possible for the army forthwith to cut its losses and retreat.

But the War Department officials do not and cannot allow to be misled by the way the "victorious" ultimatum does not intend to sit back and wait.

When Stimson proclaimed the war department's position last week, he knew that the Japanese were violating the ultimatum. He knew that the Japanese were violating the ultimatum. He knew that the Japanese were violating the ultimatum.

Russian War Plants, Tokyo Arsenal Destroyed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—Soviet Russia has declared war on Japan, President Truman announced today.

The president called reporters into his executive office to announce the momentous event.

"Russia has declared war on Japan—that's all," Mr. Truman said.

He said he hadn't been able to call a regular press conference but the announcement was so important, "I thought I had better give it to you." So he called in the reporters who were available on quick notice.

The announcement meant that the days of the Japanese empire were numbered and that the Pacific war, already shortened by the atomic bomb, would be ended even sooner.

Russia presumably now will throw against Japan the vast military organization it has built up opposite Manchuria and Korea. This organization has been reinforced since Russia whipped Germany in the eastern front.

The United States will be able to concentrate its power on the Japanese homeland without worrying about liquidating enemy forces on the upper Asiatic mainland.

LONDON—Premier V. M. Molotov announced tonight that Russia has declared war on Japan, a Moscow radio broadcast said tonight.

By Ralph Heinzen
United Press War Analyst
No definite decision regarding any of the major Mediterranean and African problems apparently was reached by the Big Three at Potsdam. There certainly were no discordant views which hold no promise of any early agreement.

All that is definite is that Russia intends to sit in from now on whenever any other powers get together to discuss any matters which touch the Mediterranean.

It is now fairly well established that Russia, at Potsdam, affirmed a policy that it will brook no interference with any of its western outlets to the ocean. That means Russia is vitally interested in the Kiel canal as well as the Skagerrak and the Kattegat, as western outlets from the Baltic, and in the Dardanelles outlet from the Black Sea and in Suez and the Tanger-Gibraltar outlets from the Mediterranean.

ON MANY POINTS there is definite conflict of Russian and British policy. This is particularly evident in the Syrian-Lebanese problem, the Dardanelles straits between Russia and Turkey, the status of the Aegean islands, the disposition of the former Italian colonial empire in Africa, the disposal of Trieste and the establishment of the new status of Tangier.

At Potsdam, Stalin is understood to have announced Russia's desire to see the Aegean islands and most if not all of Italy's African colonies placed under trusteeship of the United Nations.

BRITAIN has indicated a desire to see many of the Aegean islands transferred from Italian to British control. This is a question which settled the Dardanelles question to the advantage of Turkey, naming the Turks as custodians of the vital straits.

THE RUSSIAN POSITION is that Turkish interference with the use of the straits is in time of peace or in time of war, is intolerable. Russia wants the Black Sea nations to share control and use of the Dardanelles equally.

On one point on the Italian colonial issue, Russia and Britain seem agreed, that Italy is to be deprived of all her colonial empire. But whereas Britain disavows any intention to share control of the African north Africa, in Libya, Russia wants Libya, Italian Somaliland and Ethiopia to be placed under United Nations trusteeship.

Russia and Britain have opposite views on the Levantine dispute. Russia sides in with France and the United States to discuss a new Arab reorganization including very difficult Palestine mandate problems.

Veterans May Buy Tax Delinquent Land

LANSING—The state land of the board announced today steps to permit U.S. citizens to acquire tax delinquent property for home and business sales.

John D. Morrison, chairman said the board has approved plans providing that veterans may obtain parcels of state-owned lands for building after through outright sales by paying only the appraised value.

Each applicant for state land must be accredited by the Office of Veterans Affairs which will certify that the veteran intends to use the land for a home or business and not for resale and that he is able to finance the proposed construction. Each transaction will be a direct sale feature of state land sales.

Parcels held by the state are available to veterans as pieces of tax delinquent property not subject to regular "scraper" sales.

Miss Gleason Wed in Service At Long Rapids

Grace Episcopal chapel at Long Rapids was the scene of a pretty wedding at high noon Monday when Mary Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Gleason of Lachine, spoke her marriage vows to Col. Marvin P. Sawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac L. Sawyer. The altar was backed with baskets of pastel flowers and lighted with candles. The Rev. Walter Fry officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white crepe with a chiton over-skirt and a fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses tied with satin streamers. The bridesmaid, Miss Nellie Mae Snyder of Detroit, sister of the bridegroom, wore a gown of pale pink, the lines of which were similar to that of the bride. Her bouquet was tall and narrow.

The bridegroom was attended by his cousin, Pte. Carl L. Hillner, Howard Sanborn and Kenneth Hodgins served as guests. Mrs. Walter M. Fry played the traditional wedding march. For the occasion Mrs. Gleason chose a brown crepe ensemble with a corsage of pink snapdragons. Mrs. Snyder also wore a brown crepe ensemble with a corsage of snapdragons.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gleason entertained the wedding party, the immediate families and the out-of-town guests at luncheon at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Hodgins. Mrs. Blue Parry and Mrs. Joe Alkerson assisted and the Misses Donna Lou Alkerson and Elizabeth McClure served.

The refreshment table was covered with a blue cloth and lighted with taper in crystal holders. In the center was a three-tiered wedding cake.

The bride graduated from Alpena High school and attended Central State Teachers' college at Mt. Pleasant the past two years. The bridegroom also attended Alpena High school and was employed in Detroit prior to his induction.

He served six months in Europe with the 87th division quartermaster corps. Out-of-town guests of the wedding were Miss Ruth Girding, the bride's room-mate at Central and Mr. William Baumgartner of East Tawas. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence C. Taylor, Susan A. Reed, and Miss Roberta Fuller of Detroit.

Col. and Mrs. Sawyer left on a brief wedding trip through the western part of the state. After their return the groom will report at Ft. Benning, Ga. for re-assignment.

FEAR ATOMIC BOMB

VATICAN CITY—Vatican sources expressed grave concern today over the inhumanitarian aspects of the atomic bomb. Overseas Roman, the official Vatican organ, said editorially that worship of humanity is leading to annihilation. "Never before as now has it been necessary to go back to Christian solidarity—that feeling of responsibility that inspired Leonardo da Vinci to destroy a submarine he invented, fearing that it would turn merely into a deadly weapon," the organ said.

"Where's all the Coke gone, anyway?"

It's a question a lot of people are asking these days, all over the U. S. A. And the answer is: there's a world-wide sugar shortage, caused by the goes-along disorder and confusion that goes along with war.

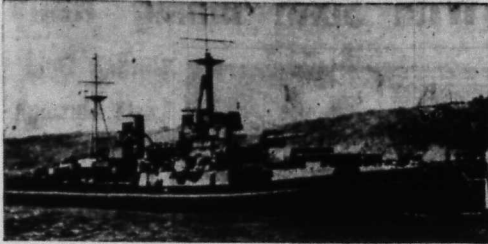

Sugar shortage means Coke shortage because Coca-Cola never compromises with quality. Today, yesterday, tomorrow—Coca-Cola means Coca-Cola, the same quality as always.

So you see, nobody is to blame—least of all your dealer. He doesn't like the Coke shortage any better than you do! So will you remember, please—if you don't get your Coca-Cola today, to ask for it again tomorrow?

Flagship of British Dummy Fleet

Greatest hour of the war was Britain's camouflage of merchant ships and outmoded warships to make a formidable fleet. Above is the 33-year-old battleship Centurion—disguised with paint and pyrotechnics to look like the 35,000-ton battleship Anson. It sailed in a Mella convoy in 1942 to confuse enemy reconnaissance planes. The phantom fleet lured German bombers away from the big British naval bases of Scapa Flow and the Firth of Forth.

the army's Alamogordo air base 120 miles southeast of Albuquerque.

Quietly, but with an air of tense expectation, a group of picked scientists began their work. FROM A STEEL TOWER built on the desert they suspended the atomic bomb—an object representing a $20,000,000 investment and years of tireless work by the keenest scientific brains that the United States and Britain could gather together.

There had been moments of nerve-racking delay while the bomb itself was being assembled. The part had been machine toolled down to the finest measurement; yet, when the experts tried to insert a vital piece, it jammed and refused to move.

Dr. R. F. Bacher of Cornell University refused to be dismayed. A little time, he said, will solve the problem. And sure enough, three minutes later the balky piece slipped into place and the atomic bomb was completed.

AFTER THE BOMB was suspended from the tower, the scientists divided into two groups to await zero hour, 5:30 a.m. One group huddled in a timber and earth observation shelter nearly six miles south of the tower. The other group was in an observation post 10 miles away.

Dr. K. T. Bainbridge of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who was in charge of detonation, and a lieutenant of military police were the last to inspect the atomic bomb suspended from the tower.

When all was set, the various observation points were tied together in a radio circuit and Dr. S. K. Allison of Chicago University began making periodic time announcements.

"Minus 20 minutes," he called. The assembled scientists waited, tensely. Would their experiment prove a success and bring with it a promise of a shorter war and later a fuller life for mankind?

"Minus 15 minutes," Dr. Allison announced. "Or would it prove so violent a blast as to mean an uncontrollable and unusable weapon?" The minutes dragged by. Finally, after interminable waiting, Dr. Allison's voice said: "minus 45 seconds."

NOW A ROBOT MECHANISM took over and from this point on the intricate mechanism was in operation without human control. The last 45 seconds seemed days in length. But suddenly the waiting was ended by an explosion much as no human being had ever before witnessed.

A blinding flash like sunlight enveloped the area. A vast multi-colored cloud billowed upward with surging power and boiled to an altitude of more than 40,000 feet in five minutes.

The steel tower? It was no more. The titanic explosion had vaporized it completely. Where it had stood was only a sloping crater.

The test was over, the bomb was a success. The atomic age had been ushered in for mankind at 5:30 a.m., July 16.

Green peppers are all over the lot. But treat them pleasantly. Too often, plain stuffed peppers are tiresome. They lack interest and appeal.

Gertrude Blain, one of the most imaginative thinkers—uppers of new ways to treat familiar foods, turns her imagination to peppers. Here's the result:

Peppers Stuffed Differently (Serves 4)

Four large green peppers, 1 pint cottage cheese, 1/4 cup raisins, 1 tablespoon chopped peanuts, dash of powdered tarragon, dash of cloves, dash of cayenne, salt, 1-2 teaspoon minced parsley, 1-2 teaspoon garlic salt.

Wash the peppers. Cut off the tops and remove seeds. Parboil in salted water about 5 minutes. Drain, saving the water. Mix remaining ingredients and stuff the cooked peppers. Stand in a baking dish. Pour around them the water in which peppers were cooked and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F) 20 minutes.

Braised Green Peppers (Serves 4-6)

Four to 6 green peppers, 2 medium-sized white onions, 1 tablespoon fortified margarine, dash red pepper, salt, pepper, 2 cooked. Turn out into serving dish and top with grated cheese.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Meat, ready-to-eat cereal, raisin toast, butter or fortified margarine, coffee, milk.

Luncheon: Bermuda-type onion and rye bread sandwiches, tomato and hard-cooked egg sandwiches, iced tea, feed coals.

Dinner: Tomato juice, braised green peppers, corn on cob, potatoes boiled in jackets, wholewheat bread, butter or fortified margarine, ready-mixed gingerbread, sliced peaches, coffee, milk.

Skidding Pulpwood from Woodland to the Roadside

A load of pulpwood is skidded out to the roadside near Little Park, Minn. Soon it will be loaded on trucks and hauled to a mill where it will be converted into war products such as supply parachutes, shell containers, bomb rings and other vital articles needed to fight the Japs. Cat spruce and balsam for war.

Where Nazi War Criminals Answer for Crimes

The largest mass trial thus far of war criminals in the American zone of occupation in Germany is shown in above Signal Corps photo. Result was seven Germans sentenced to die, three to long prison terms and one acquitted in connection with slaying of an American aviator near Rueselsheim. Defendants are shown at far right, defense counsel in center and members of the 7th Army War Crimes Commission in background.

O.P.A. Notes

Last week we had a carnival in Alpena and the general consensus of opinion is that the public got a real rippe.

A few kids were registered with the GPA and an immediate check was made on the two food stands.

Both admitted guilt in overcharging for sandwiches and an estimate was made from invoices of purchases.

The price paid estimated overcharges of $125.00 and $65.00 respectively, and certified checks made payable to the treasurer of the United States were collected.

If the public would watch prices and report violations there would be less black market.

Where is the real black market?

The real black market is any place that does not collect meat points in full—or charge more than ceiling prices—intentionally or unintentionally.

It's difficult for stores handling scores of items to keep track of points and prices. Honest butchers occasionally make mistakes. But every honest butcher is glad to have you call his attention to a mistake and is glad to rectify it.

The meat shortage is hard on everybody—but so is the war which caused it.

Steps are being taken to relieve the shortage.

Meanwhile, you can help yourself, your butcher and the men on the fighting front if you will always . . .

Pay your points . . .

Pay no more than ceiling prices! Play fair with rationing and everybody will get their share.

PORTSMOUTH, England—At least one contender was eliminated today from the British midweight title picture after champion Jack McKoy's stunning sixth round knockout over Johnny Clements, Scotch challenger.

Describes Navy Seizure of Fake Jap Hospital Ship

By Ralph Testaroth

UNITED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT
AN ALLIED PACIFIC PORT—A navy prize crew from two seventh fleet destroyers brought the Japanese hospital ship, Tachibana Maru, into an allied harbor Monday after it had been discovered to be carrying arms, ammunition and other contraband.

The Tachibana Maru was boarded three days previously and found to be carrying articles of violation of Geneva convention rules for hospital ships.

The seizure of the ship and its voyage to this port was without violence.

The navy turned over 1,562 patients, 11 officers and 63 men of the hospital ship crew to U. S. army authorities who placed them in a stockade.

It was the largest single haul of prisoners in the Pacific war.

NAVY CREWS ARE STILL DIGGING out contraband hidden in the ship's hold.

Official figures were not yet available but scores and perhaps hundreds of boxes of 7.5 and .55 mm shells, fuses, rifles, heavy and light machine guns, grenades, bayonets, knives and sabers were found on the ship.

I saw many such packages wrapped in fiber matting and labeled with large red crosses such as are placed on medical supplies.

Another article found on the ship—contraband but unique—was a bottle of Scotch whiskey.

THE SEIZURE of the ship was one of the most delicate naval tasks of the war. It was the first Japanese ship taken and the first operation was carried out without firing a shot.

The ship was first sighted by Australian planes after it left the Kai Islands, headed for Sumatra, on Aug. 1. The naval trailing and search of the ship was under command of Capt. W. H. Watson, Washington, D. C. The prize-master who led the boarding party and commanded the ship was Lt. Cmdr. Ernest R. Peterson, Council Bluffs, Ia. Peterson led an armed party of six officers and 11 men who boarded the ship from a small boat at 6:50 a.m. Aug. 3 after the hospital ship had been halted by an international signal pennant flown by the destroyer.

THE BOARDERS CARRIED crowbars, hammers, wirecutters and axes. The Japanese captain Yasuda Kirigiro, a merchant marine officer, greeted the boarders with great politeness and much bowing. He received them in the ship's salon and later took them to the bridge.

Peterson explained through an interpreter that the boarding was in conformance with international law. The skipper nodded agreement.

Peterson sent Lt. Louis M. Cartell of Santa, Tex., to inspect the patients; Lt. J. V. Bailey, New York city, to inspect the engine room; and Lt. (jg) Robert L. Kirtner of Roxbury, Mass., to inspect the holds.

While the search was going on the Japanese captain offered tea to Peterson and the interpreters. Lt. John Downing of Tooe, N.

Pulpwood Bombs the Enemy

Known as the M-26, these bombs, shown being loaded, are dropped over enemy troops showing them with surrender leaflets. An intricate timing device explodes these bombs before they reach the ground, releasing from 14,000 to 20,000 leaflets from each bomb. Farm pulpwood helps make these leaflets. Cat spruce and balsam now.

Meat, said he took a ship, but didn't drink much.

IN A SMALL FORWARD HOLD Kowetz lifted a trap door and saw packages labeled with red crosses. He cut into one and found it contained 88-mm shells and fuses. Into the portable phone line he carried he shouted "Mickey Finn," a prearranged signal meaning contraband.

Radioman Walter Powell of Orem, Utah, was waiting on deck to transmit the signal to the destroyers. When Peterson heard the "Mickey Finn" he grabbed the instrument from Powell and ordered: "Send them over."

That was the signal for the three boats totaling 10 officers and 70 sailors and marines to come over and swarm aboard.

The search took 20 minutes. Peterson notified the skipper that he had found contraband and therefore was taking over the ship. The skipper said he didn't know contraband was aboard.

The Japanese officers were segregated from their men, and Americans were posted at strategic spots.

The Japanese crew operated the ship under the muzzles of American guns.

The ship carried the ashes of 300 Japanese being returned to the Hanshuku military shrine at Okyo.

Captured Paper
Cost Nazis the War

FRANKFURT—American intelligence officers today called it "the paper that lost the war for the Germans."

It was the key to success in the Dunkerque evacuation, informant said, disclosing for the first time how some 320,000 allied troops escaped from the shrinking Nazi pocket in 1940.

The paper was captured as German forces swept toward the sea. A German staff officer ventured too far forward. British gunners hiding in the bushes raked his car with machine gun fire. The officer fled and escaped.

In the car was the paper, outlining Adolf Hitler's plan of battle along the French coast. It included the strategy for cutting off the British who were falling back toward the channel.

Capture of the paper enabled the British to deploy small forces into strategic positions. When the German attack came, the British held, and by the score of thousands.

WASHINGTON—Tokyo Radio may think she's working for the Japanese—but the U. S. Navy Tuesday cited her for contributing greatly to the morale of the U. S. armed services in the Pacific.

Rosie, who does her propaganda stuff over the Tokyo radio, was cited by Capt. T. O'Brien, director of welfare, in a radio program short-voiced to all navy personnel outside the continental United States.

"While the United States armed forces in the Pacific have been extremely busy capturing enemy hold islands, sinking Jap ships and killing Japs and more Japs, Tokyo Rosie, ever plentiful of their morale persistently entertained them during those long nights in foxholes and on board ship, by bringing them excellent stiltside humor, laughter and news about home, the citation said.

Hands their comrades got back to the coast.
